AMONG THE SEASON'S COATS

Full Length Made Banks as Strong Favorite—Coat Wrap and Hip Length in Limelight.

The full-length coat has a particular claim to sumptuousness in the voluminous sleeve that carries the effect of swirling, and provides an excuse for graceful sweeps of the arm—there is individuality in the way the woman manages this wide circular sleeve. One model of customer with a long nap that cinches over the surface is a neatly fitted circular in contour, with armholes down to the waistline, the big circular sleeves taking on the look of small capes falling in shallow folds. This coat rivals the long cloak, with fabric arranged to allow a deep fold over the arm.

A coat-wrap for walking use owes its touch of smartness to panel fronts and backs with straight sides slightly curved at the waistline—and to a wide collar without a bit of trimming.

A short hip-length coat has a caped sleeve with bl. chrysanthemum embroidery in the center of the back and on each front, done in looptitch and buttonhole edge. A stem and leaf is given to each flower, done in close stitching.

USE RIBBON ON FALL HATS

Embossed Strands of Scaly Design Are Given Cire Finish and Provide Winsome Models.

A novelty ribbon which can be used effectively on fall hats is that embossed in a scaly design and given a cire finish. It suggests the "snake-skin" and "alligator" ribbons of last season, and, according to the Bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America, proves effective in the various shades of brown embossed with either a lighter or darker hue, and a dull shade of red marked off with black. A manufacturer using this embossed ribbon has made his hats in a variety of shapes, but the off-the-face model and medium sailor with flaring brims are the most evident. Small tufts of bands of the ribbon criss-crossed in and out to make a round crown and soft cuff brims are also shown.

FRIDAY EVENING, NOV. 11, 1921.

MAKING ARMISTICE DAY THE GLADDEST OF THE YEAR.

The event of which today is the third anniversary brought almost inexpressible joy and gladness to a weary world to 2,000,000 American soldier boys in France and to many times that number of anxious hearts in the homeland.

This mood very properly characterizes any anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, but upon this particular occasion the joyousness of it should be tempered by a feeling of solemn pride because of the peculiar significance given to the day by the incidents and exercises taking place in the National Capital.

Today a private soldier who fell fighting on the soil of France and whose body could not be identified has been accorded all the honors which heretofore have been reserved exclusively for our martyred presidents. All America has willingly conceded this to have been fitting and proper because the Unknown Dead is the embodiment of all America's dead named and unnamed who yielded up their young lives in defense of the ideals for which our country has stood from its foundation and which have made it the greatest among the nations of the earth.

As typifying the service and sacrifices of all those who answered duty's call, the final burial of this Unknown in the hallowed precincts of Arlington cemetery, with the most impressive ceremony as in the presence of all the highest officials of the government and of the most notable delegation of foreign soldiers and statesmen who ever gathered on our shores gives appropriate expression of the sentiment all loyal citizens entertain with respect to our honored dead.

The presence of the distinguished company from overseas was not merely as spectators of a ceremony unparalleled in the history of our republic. They are here to participate in a conference which if its ultimate objects are achieved, will so far surpass in importance the event we have celebrated today, that it will ever afterward hold a place in history as the most august and momentous since the birth of the Holy Child in the manger in Bethlehem of Judea.

"The American veteran hopes," says the American Legion Weekly, "that the limitation of armaments conference will not prove to be only another one of those rumors. He looks for the conference to write a definite record of achievement. Certainly the conferees cannot fail to take with them to the conference table the picture of the nameless Yank's coffin being lowered into the soft earth of the Virginia hillsides, the picture of what he offered and what he paid and of what he offered it for."

As the hope that the last war was a war to end wars was begotten in the hearts of men as the result of the death of the Unknown American Soldier, and countless thousands of his comrades in the United armies to may the inspiring lessons of the return of his body to the homeland and the deliberations of the conference in Washington, hasten the realization of that hope. May these occurrences also usher in the day when the nations of the whole earth will make war impossible by evoking the Prince of Peace to first place in their hearts and lives and in their relations to each other.

Then will Armistice Day become next to Christmas, the gladdest day, of all the year and be made sacred and holy by the blood shed by the Unknown who sleeps his eternal sleep on the gently sloping hillsides of the Potomac.

America's Overseas Dead

In that short two minutes of silence dedicated for this Armistice Day, as all America felt its busy throbbing heart for one unknown soldier many American hearts will travel to strange hillsides across the sea or just around the corner to the church-where Coal City was discussing the place and manner of Abraham Lincoln's burial one senator said you might as well be saving your breath. You cannot bury Abraham Lincoln. He would not be big enough to hold him. So it may be said of those young Americans who fell in France. It little matters where their dust rests in in quiet country under which they lie. They die it one and that one is too vast for this earth to contain him.

Unknown, Yet Known

By Wright Field in The American Legion Weekly.

What are the tributes thousands pay to him whose miter's tear may fall not on his grave?
Not all the adulation of the crowd
Where drums beat slow and flags at half mast wave?
What all the blossoms on his coffin bed
A d pillar about him like a rose bower?
To him whom not one loving heart recalls
And him as in tribute just a simple flower?

To him some warm dell where falls the sun
In golden radiance at his resting place
To know that one or two come and sit
Beside his grave some abiding his side—
How then he smiled, and thus his voice rang out
A cheery greeting to his fellows—just
To know some loving heart enlivens him yet
And we'll be the him while he turns to dust

This man would be remembered. Yet while we
By pomp of burial strive to make amends
Be thou consoled to know that neither joy
When on a bough on this earth never comes
Thou art the lost of each lonely heart
And that the sun of every mother here
An even flower that lingers the basket given
Crowned with the jewel o' a mother's tear!

Unknown to us—yet known somewhere and loved
Remembered by some heart that breaks for thee
And known to Jim Who sees the sparrow fall
Whose angel writes thy name for all to see
Unknown yet known for courage the battle dared
The heat of battle and its deadly grim
Unknown yet known for thy great shield
A master still the name of who grows dim!

STALE BLOOD
BLURS LIVING

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Revives the Blood to Healthy State.

Stale blood blurs living. It dulls the love for pleasure and weakens the spirit. Thoughts sink into an un-deemed dreariness that no gauding of the will can dispel. Where there was blushing excitement, there is only an aching sensation of fatigue.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan taken regularly for a while puts a check to the debilitating effects of that watery blood. It supplies the blood with red corpuscles, steps it up to its normal rich redness. Then to it that the pulsations of rhythmic living return. The invigorating glow of life warms and brightens so that the pleasant sensations of eating, sleeping, walking in the golden sunshine, breathing deep the health-giving air again become thrilling and full of delight.

Druggists sell Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form—Advertisement.

* FASHION NOTES

Sweeping ostrich feathers like long silky black curls, trail down from the crown of a black velvet hat to the bit of white shoulder that appears above the low, eyglish neckline of a black crepe de chine frock.

Beads in strings and strands! Feathers in rosettes, and tufts and fan for motion! Such embellishments make many a belle a lovely monument to the aboriginal mothers.

Hats in a tricolor for daytime for any but the young and lovely. A blonde debonair hat with a bow astray in her choice of a wrap if she chooses black crepe de chine lined with gold brocade and topped with an orange collar, especially if the hat atop her shining crest is a black toque with crystal ornaments.

The sportier plaids, checks, and stripes, much used for the composite set all summer, continue in popularity. These rigs are shown as "fasting suits," "standing apparel" and just plain "sport suits."

Duvetyne holds its own tenaciously in the bewilderment display of new fabrics. It is very delicate in texture and rather perishable. But it is too lovely to be given up to the modes. There are harder weaves that look a kinship to duvetyne in downy surface, including monogram and ermine. The downy satin combs lose the dull luster of duvetyne with satin facing.

The spanned gown in misty fabrics is rising in popularity.

Fight Card for Monday Crammed With Best Bouts Obtainable; Four Listed

Payette Athletic Club Putting On Show Away
Above Par.

KNOCKOUTS PREDICTED

Fully aware what a victory over Tommy Phillips will mean to him, Billy Carter, the local hard hitting boxer, is training faithfully for the encounter next Monday night when these two boys meet in the star bout of 10 rounds before the Fayette Athletic club at Shavish hall. Carter is not lacking in sparring partners for this bout, as he is working out with Johnny Pollock, Joe Mullis and Bud Spellman.

The boys crowd in a hard day's work every evening at a local gym and Carter is already in the best of condition. Johnny Pollock is also getting the best of results from working out with the fast colored boy, which means Pollock will carry Johnny Fandy at a fast clip when these two sluggers meet in the semi-final of six rounds.

Duke Barry, who guides the destinies of Carter, Pollock and Fremme, besides being the matchmaker of the local club, has made arrangements with Jimmy Moore to join his own Saturday morning for a hard final workout.

Jimmy Clayton, who is to oppose Fremme, is the only boy on the card who holds a permit to box in New York state. Clayton recently fought Eddie Anderson, the Wyoming bantamweight, a 12-round draw before the Palace of Joy Sporting club at Coney Island, N. Y. Jimmy is also to meet Mike Moran on November 17 in the star bout before the Dubois club.

Johnny King of Fayette City, who is to meet Jimmy Moore, sends word that he is rounding into excellent form and will show Connellsville fans what a real fighter should look like.

The tickets now on sale at the West Penn billiard parlor and Royal hotel are being satisfactorily disposed of, assuring one of the largest crowds that ever visited Shavish hall to witness a boxing contest.

Tornadoes Await Zero Hour, 3:30, For Game Today

Primed for their battle with the Brackenridge Post American Legion football team, the Connellsville Tornadoes were awaiting a 3:30 o'clock their zero hour today with confidence. The aggregation has not had a game for two weeks and there has been steady practice in that time. Coach Jones has given his boys the full benefit of his football knowledge and with the visitors traveling on a first class reputation, a great game is in prospect.

Half a dozen uniformed officers will patrol the grounds today. Arrangements have been made to handle the greatest crowd which ever attended a football game here and special attention will be given to keeping the spectators behind the ropes.

The Brackenridge outfit arrived at 10:30 o'clock this morning. It was accompanied by a delegation of reporters and indications were that the two squads would be about evenly matched in weight.

"Connellsville High school will win tomorrow," said Ralph Hyatt yesterday. "I believe that little fighting team could defeat any high school outfit aside from the big opponents it has been meeting lately." Hyatt is the kind of a fan and sport it is a pleasure to talk to. Boosters for the high school, especially when its team has suffered a number of defeats, are hard to find.

The Bellefonte Academy team held a practice at Fayette Field yesterday afternoon. The team went to Keyser W. Va., today to play.

BEN WALLIS CALLED APOSTLE OF ROWING

Coach of California Crew Got His Job by Accident.

Served Time Under World's Best Instructors, Dick Glendon of Navy, Ten Eyck of Syracuse and John Kennedy.

Ben Wallis, rowing coach of the University of California crew, got his job by accident.

One day, by chance he saw the California trying to row. They were making a miserable showing. He walked in the clubhouse and offered a bit of advice.

His five-minute chat got him his job.

This spring he brought his crewmen East. The crew is recognized as one of the best outfits on the water.

But Wallis had served this year under the world's best rowing coaches—Dick Glendon, coach of the Navy crew, Ten Eyck of Syracuse, and John Kennedy.

Wallis is a Yale man. He won his rowing letter against Harvard. His former home was Boston.

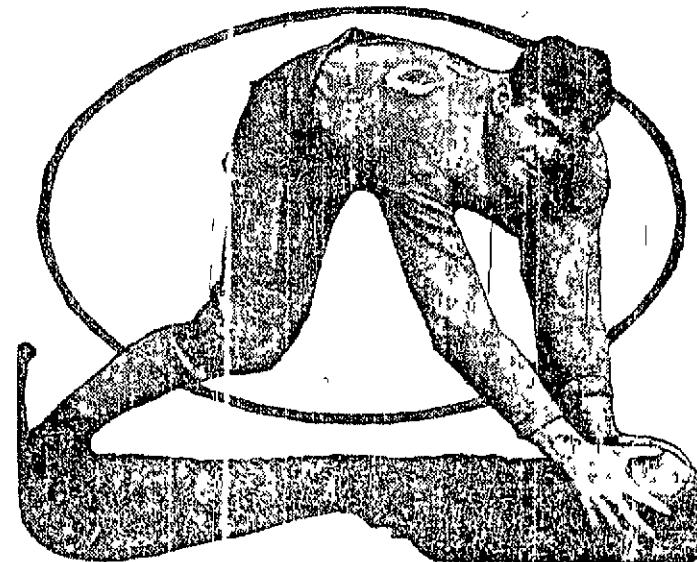

After graduating from Yale his days in the shell were over. He went to Honduras to work. Poor health over took him. He drifted into San Francisco, where by chance he became coach for the Golden Bears.

CAPTAIN HATHAWAY CONSIDERED GREATEST ALL-ROUND ATHLETE

Hathaway, Captain of the Northwestern University Eleven for 1921, is considered a Great Western Star.

"Smiling Jack" Hathaway captain of the Northwestern university eleven for 1921 is regarded by his admirers as one of the greatest all around athletes developed in the western conference in years.

His full name is Stanley L. Hathaway, and his home is in Covington Ind. Jack played guard on the varsity football team of 1919 and although weighing only 158 pounds, he took the position of center in 1920. He held the biggest and bushiest of opposing centers and fought them to a standstill last season.

FIGURES QUITE INTERESTING

They Prove Consistent Ability and Show Practically Same Men at Top in Hitting.

Baseball figures are interesting in more details than one. They prove consistent ability. Year in and year out, each set of figures show practically the same men at the top in hitting, fielding, and in pitching, writes Deacon Runyan in the New York Examiner.

Cobb, Hornsby, Speaker, Ruth, Slagle—it is a familiar tale. Once in a while a new name appears. Sometimes it remains in the first eight a few weeks, sometimes an entire season, only to drift downward to the lower levels.

When you find it staying there several years, you know that name stands for consistent ability. The owner has something more than mere flash of skill. The good men in baseball, in fact, in every other line are always at the top.

Ruth, with a long bull club, measures up to who ball stars by sheer superiority in individual effort. Walter Johnson did it so long as his physical power held out Cobb, Hornsby, Speaker.

Ruth Sisler used to bat .300 with a tall order every year.

The figures aren't all in the matter of consistent ability. They may deceive you for a few weeks or cause you to kill a morning glory as a perpetual bloom, but over a stretch of years they are bound to tell the truth.

One of his plans for the future is to build up the rowing sport among high schools on the coast.

Wallis is the new type of rowing coach which the West is noted for.

His visit to the East has added further proof that the western athlete has arrived.

QUEER TRICKS IN STANDING

Cities Having Clubs in Both Leagues Occupy Same Positions—Never Happened Before

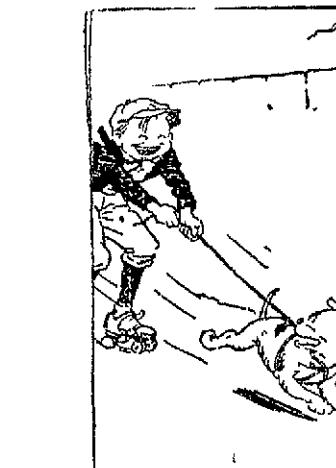

The two major pennant races this season have shown some queer tricks in the standing. For instance, at one stage in the dual two weeks of play the oddity was presented of each city having a club in both leagues showing the same standing for both. That is the two New York teams were first, the two St. Louis teams, third, two Boston teams fourth, two Chicago teams seventh and two Philadelphia teams in eighth place. That is one thing that never happened before.

CHAPTER IX.

To Fish, or Cat Wait.

It is nothing short of wonderful how he sometimes grouch and sometimes be banished by a single word. That word "Stanbie," you see; she had never called it that before, though her mother had been using the familiar handle, western usage, right along, almost from the day I landed on the Chinabear reservation.

"Yes," I said, and jumped up and went to her.

"Did you ever hear of such a thing as a bear with a sore head?" she asked, in the tone of a schoolmaster asking the dull boy if he'd ever heard of the letter "A."

"Often," I admitted.

"Well, isn't that the way you've been acting?"

"Haven't I some little cause?"

"Maybe, of course, I'm willing to make some allowances. It does seem provoking that your grandfather should have left things in such a dreadful muddle."

"How much do you know about the muddle?" I asked.

"I know that old Mr. Dudley let a party let a contract for the drainage of the mine to a man who was almost a total stranger to him."

I knew how it was. Bullerton, always ready to talk to a stuck pig la to itself, had been giving her his own version of things. But I let that part of it go.

"Grandfather Jasper was laboring for the good of my soul. He knew his medium," as the artists say. He wanted to make me work—something that nobody else has ever been able to do."

"Don't you like to work?"

"Why—e— I guess I'm like other folks in that respect. I don't mind working if I can pick my job—and my company. I've been having a bully good time hammering around this old bunch of junk with your father. Or I was having 'one until' Satan came also."

"Meaning Mr. Bullerton?"

"Quite so; meaning Mr. Bullerton, christened 'Charles'."

"Ought I to say here and listen if you're going to say things about him?"

"Not if you are going to marry him, you shouldn't."

"Well, why shouldn't I marry him? I want to? Haven't I told you that I'd marry for money?"

"Humph!" said I; "when you talk that way, you are saying out loud just what Lisette says to herself—only you don't mean it and she does. But tell me, how did you get permission to come over here and talk with me?"

"Whose permission—Daddy's?"

"No; Bullerton's, of course."

"I don't have to ask it—yet."

"Not yet, but soon," I grinned. "All things come to him—or her—who waits. Just the same, you shouldn't have come. It's cruelty to animals. After a man has traveled thousands of miles to sit at the feet of the one girl in the universe, only to find himself bowed by a brown-whiskered jest."

"Hush," she chided. "Can't you ever be serious? You are not sitting on anybody's feet. What are you going to do about the mine?"

Bullerton offered to unwater the Chinabear if I'd give him a bit more than a half interest—and possibly he'd still be willing to do that, which would mean that he'd form a stock company and trust us out completely when we got good and ready."

"What is the other way?"

"He wants to buy the mine outright, because it stands for forty thousand dollars."

"But your grandfather paid nearly half a million for it. Didn't he?"

"Even so. But you see, in the present, I am the under dog. The man who is going to marry has none of the nice little scribbles in a business transaction—if you'll permit me to go that far. He even threatens to turn me over to the authorities for stealing that inspection car and getting it smashed."

"Oh, I don't believe he'd do that," I deplored.

"It is perfectly right and proper that you shouldn't think so—in the circumstances. Just the same, you'llardon me if I say that I'm swearing unswearably and prayerfully at the circumstances."

"You don't want me to marry money, and have good clothes and all the other nice things, and travel and see the world, and all that?"

"No, by Jove! I want you to marry me."

Her laugh was just a funny little noise.

"Bluebeard," she said, just like that. "And you haven't even killed Mrs. Bumble yet! Thank you, ever so much—but I don't want to be one of several. Besides, you haven't any money."

Talk of impasses and impossible situations! What could a man say, or be to say, to such a girl as that? "Did you come over here just to torment me?" I rasped.

"Wood!" she shivered. "here comes gloomed. "Bullerton has me by the neck, and he knows it."

He tiptoed to the door and peeped out.

"You've heard 'em say 'at' curiously killed a cat," he said, out of the corner of his mouth; "well, the cat's a-comin'. Skip out o' that other door, Stanbie, and hit for the timber. I'll catch up with you in a little spall."

I didn't know exactly what he was driving at until after I got clear of the mine buildings and was climbing the slope of the mountain above. Then the bear again! and then, right smash out of a clear sky: "Kiss me—just once, Stanbie-bear!"

Did I? She was gasping a bit when she got up rather unsteadily to go back to the cabin across the dump head, and wouldn't stay another minute; though I begged and pleaded with her.

"No, indeed, Bluebeard man," she said with that queer little gurgle of a laugh: "—I—I think I have found out what I wanted to. Goodby." And then, after I thought she was clean gone, she turned back to say, slyly: "Ob, yes; I had almost forgotten what I came over here to tell you. You mustn't sell the Chinabear, Stanbie; not for any price that anybody might offer you. Goodby, again."

Can you beat it? When the good Lord made women His doubtless had many patterns; but I do believe the mold was broken, and thrown away after this Jeanie girl had been fashioned. For a solid hour or more I sat on that slab bench at the shantyhouse door in a sort of bewildered daze, wondering if I had been asleep and dreaming, or if the bedazzling thing had really happened.

At breakfast the next morning everything passed off as usual and for anything that Jeanie said or looked there hadn't have been any bench beside the shantyhouse door and the dream theory I had been playing with might have been the sober fact. An hour later, after I had gone across to the mine, Bullerton came over to dig me out, ss, before.

ILLINOIS IN THIRD PLACE

Mine-rescue and first-aid meets are held for the purpose of promoting general interest in mine-safety work and with the object of increasing the proficiency of the miners in rendering first-aid and rescue assistance to their fellow workers in time of accidents, says F. J. Bailey, assistant to the director of the bureau. The actual work of training the miners in rescue and first-aid methods is carried on constantly throughout the year by the United States Bureau of Mines by the state mining bureaus, mining companies and associations of mining companies, and organizations of mine workers.

National or international mine-rescue and first-aid meets are held annually under auspices of the United States Bureau of Mines. Their popularity is attested by the number of mining companies and other organizations that have, at considerable expense, sent well-trained teams to participate in the competition for prizes that are awarded for excellence in the demonstration of mine-safety methods. The international contest held at St. Louis, Mo., in September of the present year, was participated in by 72 teams from 6 states, and Canada. Previous meets have been held at Terre Haute in 1914, San Francisco in 1915, Pittsburgh in 1919, and in 1920.

At the meets held since 1914 78 teams have participated in mine rescue contests—the team representation from the several states having been as follows: Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, California, New Mexico and Oklahoma, one each; Montana, Nevada and South Dakota, two each; Utah, West Virginia and Wyoming, four each; Washington, five; Colorado, six; Illinois, 11; Indiana, 14; and Pennsylvania, 19. During the same period 265 first-aid teams engaged in competitive tests, as follows: Alaska, Canada and Tennessee, one team each; Arizona, Kansas, Missouri, New Jersey and South Dakota, two each; Arkansas, Montana and Nevada, three each; Kentucky, New Mexico and Washington, five each; Alabama, Iowa, Oklahoma, Utah and Wyoming, six each; Virginia, nine; West Virginia, 10; Colorado, 23; Illinois, 35; Indiana, 42; Pennsylvania, 68.

Pennsylvania and Illinois have the distinction of having sent competing teams to all five of the mine-safety demonstrations held since 1914. Pennsylvania has led all other states in the total number of teams participating in the past five meets. To these meets Pennsylvania has sent 87 teams, followed by Indiana with 57, Illinois 16, Colorado 29, West Virginia 14 and California 11.

The holding of the meets in different cities for the convenience of the various mining sections of the country, operates, of course, to prevent the attendance of some teams from distant states because of large transportation costs, yet there are nine companies or miners' organizations that have sent teams to each of the last three meets and 19 companies or organizations whose teams have participated in each of the last two contests.

It has been suggested that a prize cup be awarded at the next international meet to the team with the highest score in the last three meets.

Coke and anthracite pig iron production in October aggregated 1,332,322 tons, an increase of 217,177 tons over the September production of 985,755 tons, according to the Iron Trade Review. This compares with the July output of 884,632 tons, the smallest in many years. The October gain over July is 368,590 tons or slightly over 42 per cent.

Production of merchant iron in October totaled 204,503 tons, gain of 17,075 tons over 187,428 tons in September. Nonmerchant or steelworks furnaces produced 1,028,420, a gain of 200,362 tons over 828,067 tons in September. While the bulk of the October gain was in the nonmerchant class on a daily basis, merchant iron showed the greatest proportion of increase. Practically every state and district showed improvement during the month.

A total of 95 furnaces were blowing on October 31, this being a gain of 11 over those operating on September 30.

Organizations and Individuals Responsible for the Success of Observance of Third Anniversary Of Germany's Admission of Defeat

Plenty of "Eats" Are Provided by Auxiliary Women

Began Early to Make Systematic Preparations for The Luncheon to Visiting and Home Boys and Guests; Legion Made No Mistake in Leaving This Feature to Capable, Experienced Hands.

ARE HIGHLY PRAISED FOR THEIR SPLENDID WORK

No gathering of soldiers is complete without "Eats." The more satisfactory the conduct of the mess, especially at a mobilization when not under arms, the greater the enjoyment of the veterans who foregather as they did for the third anniversary of Armistice Day.

This very necessary feature of the celebration was wisely delegated by the general committee of The American Legion to its very useful adjunct, the Women's Auxiliary Unit of Milton LaFayette Bishop Post No. 301, composed of the mothers, wives and sisters of members of the post or members of posts located elsewhere.

That there was no complaint, but commendation and praise on every hand, for the splendid manner in which the lunch was prepared and served, was due to the fact that all matters pertaining to it were left to capable and experienced hands.

Many of the ladies who are now members of the auxiliary were also members of the dinner committee which so delighted and satisfied the ex-service men with the turkey dinner on the occasion of the first anniversary of Armistice Day in the Elks' hall on the evening of November 11, 1919. That these ladies were among those having charge of the luncheon this year was sufficient assurance to the boys that ample provision would be made for their creature comforts today.

Just as soon as the members of Milton L. Bishop post had decided to arrange for the anniversary the members of the auxiliary took up their task of giving a lunch to the former wearers of the olive drab of the Army, the blue of the Navy, or the forest green of the Marine Corps. A meeting was held and Mrs. Katherine M. Wallace was chosen general chairman of the luncheon committee and chairmen and assistants of the several committees were named as follows:

Dinner committee—Mrs. Laura Clark, chairman, who selected the following to have charge of the tables:

Mrs. Percy R. Sheets, Mrs. Harry Mason, Mrs. Howard N. Myers, Mrs. James Rapport, Mrs. Max Rockoff, Mrs. William Hirschberg, Mrs. C. G. Gray, South Connellsville chairman, Mrs. C. C. Crouse, Assistants: Mrs. A. E. Carson, Mrs. Alante Bowler, Mrs. J. C. Scott, Mrs. F. S. Croker, Miss Ella Buleff.

Chairman district chairman, Mrs. Doris Fosselman, Assistants: Mrs. Robert Hall, Mrs. Rose Hardy, Mrs. Florence Hardy, Mrs. Violet Hardy, Mrs. Hugo Carr, Mrs. W. W. Hardy.

Vanderbilt—Miss Ruth Shallenberger.

Buying committee—Mrs. E. R. Floto, chairman; Assistants: Mrs. A. B. Morton, Mrs. C. F. Hood, Mrs. D. K. Dilworth.

Decorating committee—Mrs. Venetia Kilpatrick, chairman.

The committee got down to work very promptly and in a systematic manner. The city was divided into districts and thoroughly canvassed by the members of the soliciting committee to secure contributions of cash and articles required to provide the luncheon. The reception accorded the canvassers reflected the fine spirit of cooperation on part of the people it being recorded that but one woman refused outright to help declare that she had had no person of near kin in the war, there was no occasion for her to help celebrate Armistice Day or any other function designed to honor the living or dead who preserved her own land against the same sort of a scourge France suffered for four long and disastrous years. This single unpleasant incident was in striking contrast to many voluntary offers of help which came from persons not identified with the auxiliary, but who were anxious to have a part in providing entertainment for the city's soldier guests for the day.

The results of the systematic and untiring work of the ladies comprising the general committee had its fruit in the magnificent spread given the boys at the armory which they appreciated to the full, in both the figurative and literal sense.

Equally True.

"The rapidly increasing divorce rate, remained the wit, 'indicates that America is indeed becoming the land of the free.'

"Yes" replied his prosaic friend, "but the continued marriage rate suggests that it is still the home of the brave."—The American Legion Weekly.

"TOP KICK" OF THE POST COMMITTEE STILL IN SERVICE

Not Satisfied With Experience in the A. E. F. John Penna Guard.

Lieutenant Reigh A. Marietta, the general chairman, or "Pop Kick" of the Milton L. Bishop post's Armistice Day anniversary committee, is still in the military service.

Not satisfied with over a year's service with the A. E. F. in France, he "signed up" with the Pennsylvania National Guard a few months after his return to Connellsville and is now second in command of the Howitzer Company, 110th Infantry, one of the real live units of the reorganized militia of the state.

Born and reared in Connellsville, Lieutenant Marietta later became a resident of Pittsburgh. When orders were given to mobilize the National Guard in the summer of 1917 for duty overseas, he came to Connellsville and vainly sought to find a place in the ranks of Company D, 110th Infantry. The quota had been filled, however, and he returned to Pittsburgh and enlisted in the 18th Infantry, which later became the 1st Infantry, 28th Division.

He went overseas as a member of this outfit, served with it throughout the tour of duty in France and returned with it in the spring of 1919, locating at Repulse where he was engaged as an auditor for a firm operating a system of stores at coke plants.

When orders were received to reorganize Company D, Lieutenant Marietta was among the first veterans of the war to signify his willingness to take part in the work. He was early commissioned as second Lieutenant and rendered valuable service in recruiting the unit to its full authorized strength and was mustered in with it July 27, 1920.

Last spring, when the Pennsylvania National Guard was further reorganized to conform to army requirements for a division, Company D was changed from a rifle unit to the Howitzers' Company, the only one of its kind in the 110th Infantry, Second Lieutenant Marietta, who had meantime been advanced to a first lieutenant, was made second in command of the company, which position he still holds and is in active command during the absence of Captain George Bewick Jr., at the officer training school, Camp Bening, Atlanta, Ga.

When the flag is passing in parade review, or is being raised or lowered the spectators should if walking, sit, if sitting arise, uncross and stand at "attention."

In handling the flag it should not be allowed to touch the ground.

The flag should never be placed below a person sitting.

When two American flags are crossed the blue field should face each other.

When the flag is displayed from a staff the blue field should be in the upper corner next the staff.

From private flag poles, the flag may fly at all hours day and night with due respect to the colors.

When the flag is shown horizontally, the blue field should be in the upper left hand corner to the observer, when vertical the blue should be at the upper right corner, when in either position the flag should be fastened at the top.

In displaying the flag should never be fastened or draped, always hanging flat.

The flag should never be worn as a head or part of a costume.

When carried in parade or crossed with other flags the State and Strip should always be at the right.

As an altar covering the field should be at the right as you face the altar and nothing else should be placed upon the flag except the Bible.

Private Johnson was trying to catch up a typical army rule—if one army rule can be any more typical than this follows—when the Lieutenant said, "Don't kick the mud ever kick you, Sam."

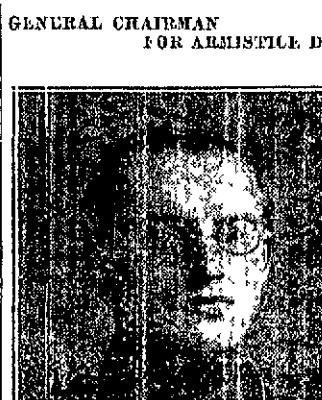

"No, sir, I don't yet," answered Mastiff Johnson, but frequently he kicks the place where Ali recently won.—The Ancon Legion Weekly.

With the flag becomes old or soiled it should be desecrated.

Always stand when "The Star-Spangled Banner" is being played or sung and protest when used in mockery.

GENERAL CHAIRMAN FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Lieut. Reigh A. Marietta

M'CORMICK, LEGION HEAD, IS LIVE WIRE

Much of Success of Organization Attributed to His Efforts.

Charles A. (Pop) McCormick, present commander of Milton LaFayette Bishop Post No. 301, The American Legion, is one of the most popular men who has headed the organization. Elected on Armistice Day, 1920, for the 1921 term, he has given much of his time and attention to affairs dealing with the post and has made it a solid, well founded unit.

Commander McCormick is a veteran of both the World War and the Mexican border. He enlisted in the National Guard in 1912 and wore the khaki until discharged at Camp Dix, N. J. in 1919 on his return from France.

He was born on April 29, 1892.

He received his education in Connellsville public and high schools. He was graduated from the latter institution in 1912 and since then has been connected with Funeral Director Charles C. Miller's business.

He was popular in athletic circles.

During his high school career, playing both football and baseball. He was a right end for four years on the grid squad and was captain in 1911.

In 1911 he played centerfield in the ball team.

Enlisting in the Medical Detachment of the "Fighting Tenth" regiment, Pennsylvania National Guard, on April 14, 1912, he remained with the organization a number of years, serving on the Mexican border in 1916. In September 1918 he accompanied the command to Camp Hunt, Georgia, and sailed for France on May 3, arriving in France on May 14. He saw a turn in severe operations including the Champaign-Marne, the Oise-Aisne, the Somme, and Aisne-Artois. He was gassed in the Oise-Aisne fighting, and was in a Paris hospital for three weeks.

He left France on his birthday, April 29, 1919, and was discharged at Camp Dix, N. J. on May 21, 1919.

On November 25, 1919, he married Miss Anna Margaret Cation of South Connellsville.

He died.

Private Johnson was trying to catch up a typical army rule—if one army rule can be any more typical than this follows—when the Lieutenant said, "Don't kick the mud ever kick you, Sam."

Intensive Work of Members Legion Post Responsible

Aim From the First to Surpass Anything of Character Ever Attempted in the City and to This End Efforts Were Begun to Enlist Co-operation of Other Legion Posts in the County.

R. A. MARIETTA GENERAL CHAIRMAN ORGANIZATION

The success of the third anniversary of Armistice Day in Connellsville is due to two factors—the hard work of the committees having the affair in charge and the willing co-operation of the people of the city and vicinity.

Beginning far in advance of the date to formulate the plans the several committees had ample time to perfect the details with the result that the event quite surpasses any similar occasion in the history of the city, both in point of attractiveness as a public demonstration and interest manifested by the people generally.

There are, therefore, the best of reasons why those having the preparation and direction of the program, the arrangement of the several features and the numerous details in charge, are to be congratulated upon their achievements.

The suggestion to hold an anniversary of Armistice Day this year that would be different from those preceding, and include a larger area than Connellsville and its environs, was made by members of Milton LaFayette Bishop Post No. 301, The American Legion, several months preceding the actual date of the anniversary.

The more the idea was discussed the more generally was it favored by the members of the post and the decision was reached to provide a program that would be quite out of the ordinary, as it has proven to be, as a fitting way in which to give greater importance to the anniversary of the occurrence of the day upon which the Germans were glad and willing to accept almost any terms and conditions that the Allies might be disposed to offer as precedent to a cessation of hostilities.

Early in October the post got down to the business of preparing for the anniversary by selecting Reigh A. Marietta to serve as chairman of the general committee and designating other committees as follows:

General arrangements—Mrs. C. Floto, chairman.

Reception committee on open house—Frank L. Barley, MacCabe; S. D. Oppenheim, Eagles; Henry Bailey, Knights of Columbus; Ira Moon, Elks; John Rankin, Moose.

Transportation—H. Dana Wright, automobiles; Chester K. McKesson, West Penn railways; Earl Shank, Baltimore & Ohio; Ray McClinton, Pennsylvania.

Publicity—R. V. Deck, chairman; John D. Butler, posters; George Percy, newspaper.

Parade (military and industrial)—Frank D. Bartley, chairman; James Ryland, solicitation of floats; Fred Reid, service men; Quay Herwick, assistant; G. F. Burkhardt, assistant; Charles McCormick, parade marshal; Irving M. Snow, assistant marshal.

Sports—Henry Bailey, chairman; Michael Frank, Charles Carson, Sam R. Renz, John Rankin, ticket takers.

Dinner—J. M. Dilworth, chairman; dinner to be served by the Ladies auxiliary.

Dance—Ira Moon, chairman; Percy Sheetz, treasurer; Frank D. Butler, ticket seller; R. V. Deck, Frank Sweeney, Casper Murray, John D. Rankin and John D. Butler, door.

Memorial—Charles A. McCormick, chairman, church bells; Earl Shank, and Thomas W. Scott, Baltimore & Ohio whistles, Henry Bailey, all steam plants.

Bands and drum corps—W. E. Lambie, chairman; Leisenring band; John Rankin, Seaside band; Robert McLean, Connellsville bands; Sam Renz, correspondents.

Speakers—H. Dana Wright, chairman.

Grand Army and wounded soldiers—Ray McClinton, chairman, and Foster Cutfield.

The Substance of It.

The rookie on Post No. 1 as the general approaching with his staff. He had the idea all right, although he was a bit weak as to formulate. Biting himself sternly, he yelled: "Turn out the whole bunch! Here comes the main squeeze!" The American Legion Weekly.

Headquarters Pleasant.

Many evenings are made pleasant at the rooms of Milton Bishop post when the members having musical talent gather about the piano. Often there are several string instruments brought to the "gird" of the "poor piano."

"SPOONING" IN PARKS

By Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 11.—A man who has lived in Youngstown only three months and whose platform provided for discontinuance of street car service, turning over the streets to jitney buses and for halting any citizen who paid taxes under a recent revaluation was yesterday elected mayor or over candidates backed by the majority party organizations. He is George Oles, who came in from the country, established a residence in a hotel and carried on an extensive advertising campaign without the support of any particular element of organization.

Other planks in his platform included permitting "spooning" in city parks under police protection, dismissing the entire police force "if it doesn't meet its way" and a promise to turn over his salary to charity. The women's vote is believed to have been responsible for Oles' election.

An Easy Way For Thin People to Put on Flesh and Gain Weight

Strong, Straightforward Advice to Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women.

If you are thin, scrawny and undeveloped, if your face is peaked and wrinkled and your physique unattractive, it's almost certain that your nervous system is at the bottom of the trouble. You can eat three, yes four, substantial, fat producing meals a day, drink milk, cream, eggs, bacon, etc., sufficient supply of nerve force this food you eat will pass out of the body with little if any benefit.

In order to stimulate properly the nourishing food you eat and convert it into healthy tissue and fat the nerves that control the process of digestion and assimilation must be put in first class working order. To do this right just as we were built to do it, eat meat.

Your system is aching for something that will turn the food you eat into healthy stay-there flesh and muscle. It is time to stop trying to correct faulty nervous digestion.

This nervous run-down people, however, with impure blood and half starved bodies are having with delight the new product of the world's most famous drug store, DR. JEVANS' TRIPLE PHOSPHATE.

It is unequalled for repairing faulty digestion and correcting nervous aches and pains. In fact, the makers of Dr. Jevans' Triple Phosphate guarantee that one month's treatment will increase your weight by several pounds and within ten days make you feel like a new person. It is safe, non-stimulating and a doctor to accomplish things. The Connellsburg Drug Co., C. Roy Holzel and leading druggists everywhere have agreed to sell Dr. Jevans' Triple Phosphate and guarantee it is as just what is claimed for it or money refunded.

Citizens! While Dr. Jevans' Triple Phosphate accomplishes wonderful results in removing digestive trouble and as a general nerve tonic, it should not be taken by anyone who objects to a few additional pounds of solid stay-there flesh.

1,000,000 TRAIN FOR BUSINESS

Schools and Colleges Are Specializing in Foreign Trade.

BANKERS ARE HELPING OUT

Manufacturers and Merchants Assist by Making Curious Practice—Ten Year Course Is Offered, and One Big Institution Has Nearly 8,000 Such Students Enrolled—Federal Bureau of Education Gives Out Some Interesting Information.

More than 1,000,000 young men and women are seeking special training for foreign trade and general business careers in public and private schools and colleges throughout the United States, according to reports to the federal bureau of education.

Preparation for business life through especially prepared courses of study in educational institutions specializing in the work is appealing more each year to individuals who hope to achieve lasting success, according to officials of the federal bureau. The number who attend business schools and colleges is increasing at the rate of 25,000 students a year.

Training for Business.

Colleges and schools in all parts of the country are carrying their courses to be of greater service in preparation of students for business life. Bankers, manufacturers and men whose experience is large in business circles are lending their assistance to the federal government and to individual institutions to make the courses more practical.

Training in business is being given in two-thirds of the state colleges and universities, according to the reports to the bureau of education. These state institutions are those which have established special schools giving training exclusively in industrial and business pursuits. The number of such special schools is increasing each year.

With the facilities already in existence it now is possible for a young man or woman to specialize in business training immediately after leaving the eighth grade and to continue the work through college. That amounts to eight years of specialized training for commercial and manufacturing pursuits and is equal to that accorded in the professions like medicine and law.

Foreign trade offers unusual opportunities for success in all its phases during the next five or six years in the foreign trade field, it is believed. The United States, with its enormous war-born merchant marine, is on the road to becoming the world's greatest maritime nation.

In Public Schools.

Nearly 8,000 public schools, exclusive of state universities, are giving special courses in industrial and commercial subjects. A very large majority of them are organized to teach no other branch of work. Their enrollment is about 800,000, according to reports to the bureau of education. Another group of 900,000 students is at work in private schools and foundations, while the number attending business schools maintained by corporations and religious organizations is about 400,000.

Colleges offering advanced business courses have an enrollment totalling 40,000. The enrollment is increasing each month.

Elementary courses are offered by public schools. Through business high schools, students who cannot attend college are offered the opportunity to go to work well equipped. By means of the schools maintained by private individuals and by big concerns these same students can continue their studies at night and with advancement while gaining at first hand knowledge of conditions in the business world.

Nine Thousand in One College.

Colleges offering training in accountancy and factory administration are attracting thousands of students in New York, Philadelphia and Boston. One New York institution now has nearly 8,000 students enrolled in business courses; another has 8,000 and a third, 2,000.

The growth of the school specializing in business training is shown by the fact that five years ago the number of students taking such subjects in colleges did not exceed 15,000. Now three colleges in New York alone have an enrollment of more than that number.

The total of all students attending universities giving business courses has increased 200 per cent in five years, it is pointed out.

Dr. A. S. Swiggett of the bureau of education is chairman of a committee of fifteen in co-operation of practical business men in encouraging extension of business training. Men of large affairs in all sections of the United States are enrolled as an advisory committee of 100.

Use Special Course.

The committee devised for students of foreign trade a special course now being used in several large colleges. This course would require ten years to complete for the student beginning it just after leaving the grade schools. It includes special training in languages, geography, social customs and manners, as well as practical drill in actual problems of foreign trade. Doctor Swiggett explained:

"The course is intended to fit the American going into foreign trade to compete on an equal plane with the trained men of Europe. Too often in the past the American business man has found it impossible to do a large business abroad because he knew little of his customers except their business needs. He found it impossible to gain and hold their interest and friendship in a business way because he did not know them or understand them. We are trying to turn out a salesman who can go into his foreign territory and feel at home in the unfamiliar atmosphere. Such a business man must have a very large store of general information. He must be able to talk to customers about things aside from his business and his wares."

The ten-year course is being revised on the basis of its actual trial for the last several months. Meanwhile the bureau of education is doing its utmost to encourage the extension of business courses in institutions of learning in all sections of the United States.

TIES VICTIM IN BATHTUB

Memphis Hotel Burglar Robs New Yorker of $2,500.

J. Q. Hiers, New York salesman and father of Walter Hiers, actor, was discovered in the bathtub of his room at the Hotel Gayoso in Memphis, Tenn., with his foot tied to the faucet of the tub, where he had been placed, he told detectives, by an intruder who entered his room and robbed him of $20 in cash and diamonds valued at approximately $8,000.

The discovery was made by other guests of the hotel who responded to Hiers' calls for help. The burglar struck Hiers over the head but his injuries were not serious.

Hiers told detectives that he was sitting in his room writing letters when some one knocked at his door. The door was unlocked and Hiers called to the visitor to enter. As he turned about in his chair a revolver was thrust at him, he said.

ISLANDERS QUIT TATTOOING

There is only one "tahuna" (master tattooist) left in the Marquesas Islands, where a generation ago they were the most numerous and skilled of all such artisans, says Dr. Ralph Linton, assistant in ethnology at the Bishop Museum, Honolulu, who has returned after ten months of investigation and research in the South Seas.

Of all the things he saw while in the Marquesas, the marvelous tattooing displayed by the natives was one of the most interesting.

The men were formerly tattooed all over the body, even inside the nostrils, and on the scalp, and the hair was shaved off in patches to reveal the artistic work.

TWO FACTORS

determine the value of a paper's circulation to the advertiser—quality and quantity.

The quality may be judged by the methods of obtaining subscriptions.

The quantity may be known absolutely by an independent and expert audit of the circulation records.

Both points are covered by the reports of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

The advertiser who buys space on a business basis asks for an A. B. C. statement and studies it.

If an advertiser who does not demand an A. B. C. statement conducts the other branches of his business on the same method, he soon would not have any business to conduct.

An advertiser is entitled to the facts. An A. B. C. paper has nothing to hide.

The A. B. C. report of The Courier will be sent to advertisers on request.

There Being No Supporting Demand Coke Market Shows No Distinct Developments

Furnaces Holding Off From Stocking Up According to Custom.

WAIT FOR FREIGHT CUTS

In Order to Even Up Costs Somewhat; Quotations Unchanged but Securing Upper Range Is Not Feasible; Pittsburgh District Coal Very Dull.

Special to The Weekly Courier PITTSBURG, Nov. 9.—The past week has shown no distinctly favorable developments in the Connellsville coke market, but at the same time there have been no distinct unfavorable developments. The market has simply weakened a trifle in general tone by reason of these being no supporting demand. If operators were not firm in their price views the market would be quoted lower, for at a time like this cutting prices would not develop demand and there would simply be lower asking prices.

Both blast furnaces and foundries are adverse to laying in stocks as they usually do at this time of year, to insure against interruptions in transportation due to winter weather, because all buyers are hoping that freight rates will be reduced, and the rate reduction would write a depreciation on stock piles. While there is no doubt that coal, coke and other rates will be reduced eventually, the trade has no definite information on which to base a prediction that rates will come down on this date or that date. The railroad policy is to hold out as long as feasible.

While it is being argued that the railroads ought to reduce rates in order to get more business, the fact is that freight traffic is not light as is generally assumed. The report for August appeared this week and shows a freight ton-mileage only 29 per cent below that of August, 1920, which was the record high month for ton-mileage for all time. A natural inference is that a very moderate increase in the volume of freight offered, coming along with winter weather, would tangle up the railroads and cause car shortages. In some quarters in the coke trade car shortages are predicted for the winter. Those who believe these predictions and say they merely represent the fabled cry of "wail" do not seem to be familiar with the fact that the railroads are fairly busy now, even though they are not making much money.

While the production of pig iron and steel has been increasing steadily until very recently it looks now as if there would be no further increase during the remainder of the year, and the recently expected blowing in of a number of blast furnaces is postponed. The situation makes it that coke owners have no basis blown in somewhat too rapidly of late, and a slight curtailment in production may be necessary to avoid disorganization of the market for present prices, mere representation of cost of production and any decline would spell losses to coke operators.

While $3.50 is still the minimum quotation on really standard furnace coke for spot shipment the upper range of the market $3.50 two or three weeks ago and $3.10 a week ago is no longer feasible. $3.50 being approximately the outside figure. I've seen a short period contract could hardly be negotiated at $3.25 unless for coke distinctly of grade but $3.50 could probably be done. For delivery running through the winter or past January 1, $3.50 is a likely quotation.

In foundry coke it has been increasingly difficult to secure $4.75 even on very good brands, though the price is sometimes paid still. Fairly good brands are offered at $4.25 and even more freely than two or three weeks ago, but this price could hardly be had on really standard coke. The market is quoted as follows:

Spot Furnace	... $3.25-$3.50
Spot Foundry	... $4.25-$4.75

The Pittsburgh district coal market has been very dull in the past week. The strike called on Thursday against substitution of the check-off in connection with Judge Anderson's injunction, and then called off Monday when an appeal was granted by the appellate court at Chicago did not liven the coal market at all. The railroad strike threat three weeks earlier had produced a little buying movement and the memory of that false alarm was too fresh in the minds of buyers to allow another strike threat to produce results. Except in the case of gas coil prices for Pittsburgh district coal are practically nominal at $2.10 to $2.20 for coke-run and $2.60 to $3.70 for screened. Connellsville and other regions, with lower costs being able to take care of demand. Slack is offered at under $1.50, being in excess supply on account of the screening of coal to supply gas coil contracts.

The local pig iron market continues practically stagnant. Consumers apparently foresee lighter operations while they are unwilling to have any pig iron in inventory at the end of the year. Pities are not greatly changed, but would probably yield a trifle upon the appearance of competitive business, the market being quoted as follows:

Barremer	... $2.90
Horn	... $2.90
Country	... $2.90

These prices are for Valley furnaces. Freight to Pittsburgh is $1.95.

One Coal Freight Cut.

A freight reduction of $1.25 a ton on bunkering coal from the Utah fields to San Francisco has been announced by the Western Pacific rail-

INDIANS TO APPEAL TO KING.

Delegates From Six Nations Represent One of Oldest Confederacies in the World.

The delegates from the Six Nations who are to make a personal appeal to King George in respect of their ancient rights represent one of the oldest and most famous confederacies in the world, certainly the most famous in the history of "savagie" nations.

The Five Nations confederacy, the eastern branch of the Iroquois, goes back before the discovery by Columbus.

It was strengthened in 1712 by the admission of the Tuscaroras from North Carolina, and consisted then of the Mohawks, Oneidas, Cayugas, Onondages and Senecas, with the Tuscaroras.

The Treaty of Utrecht had declared the Five Nations to be British subjects and in the long struggle between France and England in America the British government based its claim to large tracts of country sometimes on the ground of the so-called subjectship of the Five Nations sometimes on the ground of treaties made with them. By the middle of the Eighteenth century an orator of the Five Nations declared in conference: "We don't know what you Christians, Englsih and French intend. We are weened by your both that we have hard to a gunce left. In a little while it will die a bear in treese. It will immediate appear an owner of the land to claim the property. We are so perplexed between you that we hardly know what to say on our think."

WOOL BY HAIR TONIC NO MORE.

Young Men With Small Wages Find Girls Do Not Demand Aromas—Barbers Complain.

Hark to the plaint of the barbers quoting the Milwaukee Journal. During youth were wont to stroll about themselves and murmur moaningly. Given eve stings are now history. Modern hair dressers have discovered that they can stop about with the lady of their choice without surrounding themselves with the aroma of hair tonic.

Barbers complain that since the business depression began and wages have come down the Beau Brunette of wartime prosperity who used to spend $2.50 every 10 days in improving his personal appearance is a thing of the past.

"In the days that are done the boys would order all the trifles known to the tomboy artist," said one barber. "Now they shun themselves and about once in six weeks get plain haircut."

Another barber admitted that he is forced to use a bit of salesmanship to convince the customer that he needs a shave. The poorest combing his hair when the day begins is a sure sign who he is really that times when "twinkles" was the usual tip. The man who admits such great a scuttle to being vanquished.

To Give Timber "Shot."

The best method of applying preservatives to timber is by the pressure process which is used by practically all large commercial companies says the American Forestry Association of Washington. By this means the oil or mineral salt is forced directly into the tissues of the wood thus giving a thoroughness and permanence not otherwise attainable. There are various processes but the use of acids and expensive apparatus by which vacuum and heavy pressure may be applied in large truing cylinders which are usually 40 feet or more in diameter and a hundred feet or more in length.

Much Timber Decay.

It is estimated that eight billion cubic feet of unrefined structural lumber decay every year, says the American Forestry Association of Washington. If that whole amount were to be treated we would actually save about four billion feet of lumber every year. That is to say it would reduce unnecessary deforestation on some four hundred thousand acres of land.

In England admiringly it is said that a coast tunnel of 14 miles and recently requires constitutional treatment and the memory of that tunnel is a coast tunnel of 14 miles and recently requires constitutional treatment.

Spruce blenders and news dealers are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the nostrils and hand to them and you should use the spruce oil in the form of a liniment or ointment to the cause of misery.

Leprosy in Indians Rare.

Dr. A. De Marti writes in Brazil Medical (Rio de Janeiro) that in his 20 years of practice in Amazonia he has seen but two or three cases of leprosy among the Indians there.

The disease is rare in the Amazonian climate, a constitutional treatment and should prove especially effective to sufferers here who live under more favorable climatic conditions.

Secure from your druggist one oz. of Parment (Doubtless strength). Take this home and add to it a pint of hot water until dissolved. Twice a day spoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing symptoms. A new and hopeful treatment for leprosy, although representations of other deformities are common and none of the early explorers mention leprosy among the natives.

Chaulmoogra Tree in California

Steps have been taken to grow the chaulmoogra tree in the United States plant introduction station near Chico.

The tree's oil has proved of great benefit in treating leprosy in Hawaii. It is native of India. Seeds have also been sent to Florida and Maryland.

Milton L. Bishop Post Of Legion Has Made For Itself Fine Record

Has Played Part of Leader in Number of Community Enterprises.

FAME IS NATION-WIDE

Organized November 4, 1918, and Named in Honor of Member of Company D Killed by Shell Which Struck 110th Infantry Headquarters

Milton Lafayette Bishop Post, The American Legion, composed for the most part of ex-service men from Connellsville, but including those from surrounding points, has enjoyed an eventful and prosperous life since its organization in 1919. Its name has spread to all parts of the nation through the part it has played in connection with national conventions of the American Legion, and it is known as the liveliest soldier organization in Fayette county.

The Connellsville post has been progressive and has been the power behind a number of projects in the community. It has inaugurated an annual community picnic, has headed the movement for big Armistice Day celebrations in the county and has been a willing participant in many other events.

The post was organized at the Baltimore & Ohio Y. M. C. A. on September 4, 1918, by Captain Schadie, commander of the county committee of the American Legion of Allegheny county. He visited this city at the request of J. C. Donahue, commander of the Fayette county committee, who was unable to organize a post here because of the reluctance of the men to enroll, caused by a belief that the post would not be entirely a local one but instead would be affiliated with a similar organization in Uniontown.

Max C. Floto, Edgar J. Horner and Harry G. Mason were three of the prime movers in the formation of the Connellsville post. Through their efforts service men were induced to meet Captain Schadie at the Y. M. C. A. and the organization was effected. The post was named in honor of Sergeant Milton Lafayette Bishop, who was killed in action in France while on duty with Company D, 110th Infantry, to which he had belonged when it left here to go into training at Camp Hancock. The body of the soldier has since been brought back from France and is interred in the Hill Grove cemetery.

In the first election Edgar J. Horner was named commander; Harry G. Mason, vice-commander; Max C. Floto, post finance officer, and Lloyd McClelland, adjutant. Later Mason succeeded Horner as commander when the latter resigned because he removed his residence from the city. The first event headed by the Legion was a ministerial show given in the high school auditorium. It was successful and was in a great measure responsible for the annual "Fol-lies," on the 1922 performance of which preliminary plans are now being drawn up. The post also headed the Armistice Day celebration and its representatives at the state convention introduced a resolution asking Congress to make November 11 a national holiday. The resolution was later introduced by Congressman Samuel A. Kendall. He received the section of the national convention of the American Legion held in that year.

The Connellsville post conducted a membership campaign the same year and secured a total of 525 members. The success of this drive and the Armistice Day celebration were featured by a big banquet held at the Elks' home. In the same year the Legion members assisted the Red Cross in its membership campaign.

Thomas W. Scott was elected commander of the post in the second year, the election being held in connection with the celebration of Armistice Day. Max C. Floto was made adjutant; Lloyd McClelland, post finance officer, and J. M. Dilworth, vice-commander. When T. W. Scott resigned Major R. S. McKee was elected as his successor.

The first picnic held in 1920.

It was a community affair and the entire city was closed to allow all participants of stored to attend it. Carl E. Floto was chairman of the committee.

In the same year the Armistice Day celebration was on a somewhat larger scale. Congressman S. A. Kendall was here as the chief speaker of the day and following his address at the high school Charles A. McCormick was elected post commander. Lloyd McClelland was made vice-commander; Charles F. Donnelly, post adjutant; F. Ray Metzger, post finance officer; Fred D. Munson, post legal aid officer; Byron Shoff, post historian; and Rev. E. A. Glennon, post chaplain. The executive committee included H. Dame Wright, P. R. Sheetz, T. W. Scott, I. M. Snow and J. M. Dilworth.

In the winter of 1920 the first "Legion Polka" was presented and went over successfully. The show was held under the paternal direction of John A. Brown and the chairman of J. M. Dilworth.

For a time after the organization of the post, all meetings were held at the Baltimore & Ohio Y. M. C. A. through the courtesy of the secretary, W. F. Underwood. Later headquarters were secured in the Solsonate building in West Crawford and the American Legion. This organization now has 123 members.

The first officers were: Chef de gare, I. M. Snow; chef de train, Rev. E. A. Gloucon; conductor, Thomas W. Scott; commissaire intendant, B. M. Sheaff; correspondent, C. A. Donnelly; guards de prisonier, Frank Sweeney; Charles Yaw and Charles Carson; cheminots, Charles A. McCormick; executive members, Fred D. Munson, C. A. McOpnick and Thomas W. Scott; guard de la porte, D. M. Campbell; guard aux chevaux, Max C. Floto.

The present officers of the organization are: William D. Wardlaw, chef de gare; Lanier Robertson, chef de train; H. C. Bank, conductor; Thomas W. Scott, correspondent; Earl Shank, commissaire intendant.

Like the Legion, the Hommes organization is a live one. At the recent state convention of the Legion in Pittsburgh it sent a delegation of 50, composing the "wrecking crew" in a box car. The crew put on initiation work at the convention.

Bishop post has taken the lead in many ways. It is not only the liveliest organization in Fayette county but holds a position among the leading posts in the state and nation. Its officers are young men of good standing and ambition, who use their efforts to get the best possible for the members.

Post members have proven themselves faithful to their commanders who fell before the German onslaught in France by the willingness with which they have consistently turned out at the funerals of those whose bodies have been brought back from Europe.

Frequently it would be necessary to conduct those funerals on two or three consecutive days and sometimes more than once in a day. The spirit exhibited by the Bishop post, however, was just what hundreds of similar organizations were doing. Nevertheless the former soldiers won warm places in the hearts of many fathers and mothers whose boys returned only to be laid in a new resting place under the earth over which flies the flag for which they died.

Following are the present members in good standing in the post. Where addresses do not follow the names, the legionnaire is a resident of Connellsville.

Britain Pays Honor to Its Unknown Dead

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Armistice Day was celebrated today with a certain amount of ceremonial display centered round the cenotaph at Whitehall containing the body of Britain's unknown soldier, where the principal function took place.

The program which had been approved by the cabinet was based on consideration that the celebration should be characterized not so much by grief and mourning as by honorable pride and grateful remembrance.

Representative detachments of the navy, the army, the royal air force, and ex-service men's associations marched via Birdcage Walk and Parliament Square to the cenotaph this morning and there formed a hollow square.

Shortly before 11 o'clock a representative of King George followed by the prime minister and the high commissioners of the self-governing dominions and India laid wreaths on the cenotaph.

On the last stroke of 11, muffled drums were beat in the metropolitan area, and two minutes' silence was observed.

At 11:02 further muffled drums were fired, followed immediately by public singing at the cenotaph of "O God, Help in Ages Past," this being accompanied by the masses bands of the guards. The rosaline was then sounded by buglers and the ceremony was completed.

The troops then marched off and the general public in Whitehall was marshaled into procession, moving toward Westminster, so that they might deposit wreaths on the cenotaph as they passed.

It was asked that the two minutes' silence be observed.

FOREIGN VETS IS OLDEST SERVICE MEN'S BODY HERE

NAME TWICE CHANGED

Camp Walter E. Brown, Veterans of Foreign Wars, which is sharing in the observance of Armistice Day, is the oldest organization of service and ex-service men in Connellsville. First organized as the Army of the Philippines, the title has been changed twice, each change being made to allow a broadening of the field covered by the charter for admission of more members.

The camp was organized a few years after the return of Company D, Tenth Infantry, from the Philippine Islands. There were not many men there at that time but in many years membership enrollment has been put on and the enrollment increased. At present there are approximately 230 names on the roster.

The Army of the Philippines included only soldiers who fought on the island. Then the title "Spanish-American War Veterans" was adopted to allow the admission of men who had participated in Cuban engagements during the same war. In 1916 the title was changed to "Veterans of Foreign Wars" and any soldier who has fought under the American flag on foreign soil is eligible for membership.

There were 20 signers to the original charter. They were Louis P. McCormick, James McKeon, Huestand A. Crow, Joseph C. Herwick, George E. Beatty, James A. Stickel, Richard T. Cunningham, Harry L. Bishop, Louis May, John M. Martin, John W. Findley, Thomas H. Cunningham, William D. DuBois, Herman C. Walker, Charles J. Resecker, Frank B. Port, Harry Bringle, U. S. Marines, A. E. F. treasurer, Miss Ruth Shallenberger and others.

Present officers of the organization are: William D. Wardlaw, chef de gare, L. S. McClellan, conductor, Thomas W. Scott, correspondent; Earl Shank, commissaire intendant.

Present officers are: Commander Clyde R. Miller; vice-commander, Russell Eichler; adjutant, James Murphy; treasurer, Fred Collins; chaplain, Harold Kitzscher; war risk insurance agent, Myer Morris; sergeant-at-arms, Quay Kink; historian, Clif Daugherty.

The camp is named in honor of Walter E. Brown, a corporal of Company D, and the only man lost by the company during the campaign. He was killed in the fight with the Spaniards known as the "Battle of Malina."

A bullet struck him in the forehead, killing him instantly. He was a corporal in the company, having been a member when the Tenth was called to arms. His home was in Vanderbil and following the close of the war the body was brought back and interred there.

The "Vets" have been furnishing firing squads for funerals of members of the G. A. R. continuously for the past 10 years and frequently participated in military funerals of the older soldiers before that time. Since the close of the World War, many of the firing squads acting at funerals of returned soldier dead have been composed of Foreign Veterans.

The organization has been acting in conjunction with the American Legion post in many affairs which concern both organizations and the feeling between the two soldier units is better here than is the case at many other places. There is no opposition, and the one reason for this is the fact that many former service men are members of both the Foreign Veterans camp and the Legion post.

The application for the charter was forwarded the same night to state headquarters, where granting of it was delayed pending the action of the national convention of the Legion at Milwaukee, November 10-12. The resolution of the first state convention, under which the auxiliary was organized, provided for the admission of Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Salvation Army, and women war workers of all other organizations to membership.

The national convention changed this by limiting membership to the immediate relatives of members of The American Legion. This necessitated a revision of the charter application to include only those who met the new requirements and who had become members prior to November 11, 1918. The charter was granted from national headquarters of the auxiliaries at Indianapolis, Ind., March 3, 1920. The official name given the body was, "Women's Auxiliary Unit, Milton L. Bishop Post No. 301, The American Legion, Department of Pennsylvania."

The first noteworthy activity of the unit was to serve a turkey dinner to the young veterans and their guests in the Elk's hall on the evening of the first anniversary of Armistice Day, November 11, 1919. Mrs. D. Dilworth was the general chairman in charge assisted by a large staff and several sub-committees. Over 400 men were served and the affair was one of the most conspicuous successes of the kind ever held in Connellsville.

Later the unit assisted the post in a variety of ways, such as selling tickets for entertainments, the community picnic and otherwise. Last year at the national convention of the Legion, held in Milwaukee, the unit sold $200 worth of tickets.

In 1920 members of Bishop post at the convention, held in Cleveland, were Thomas W. Scott and Irving M. Snow.

Mr. Scott and Max Floto were the delegates to the first national gathering held in 1919 at Minneapolis.

The post has been well represented at all state conventions.

A COMPLETE ECONOMICAL SQUARE HOUSE

DESIGNED BY CHAS. S. ERDGWICK

BRICK and cement stucco are the materials used in the construction of this house, which is one of the most economical models we have as yet shown. The brick is used up to the skill course and the cement stucco is used above to the roof. This makes a picturesque and substantial model and one that would be attractive in any community in which it can be built. This is a very economical plan with large living room on the first floor and dining room, breakfast room and kitchen in the rear. The stairway which ascends from the living room is well lighted and charmingly "breaks" the extreme right end of this room. A coat closet alongside of the stairway is convenient. A good supply of space is a happy addition to the first floor plan. There are three bed rooms and bath room on the second floor with an open balcony in the rear. There is also an attic which is meant for storage purposes only and ample closet space for linens and clothes.

The first floor is finished in oak with oak door while natural pine is used to finish the second story.

There are many unusually delightful features connected with this house. For instance, it has an outside side entrance which will prove convenient on more than one occasion while the breakfast room has built-in table and seats and the dining room has a built-in sideboard. These features will save considerable money and at the same time they add much to the general value and charm of the house.

The following is a copy of the floor plan:

Living Room 12' x 16'

Dining Room 10' x 12'

Kitchen 10' x 12'

Breakfast Room 8' x 10'

Bed Room 10' x 12'

Bed Room 10' x 12'

Bath 6' x 8'

Attic 12' x 16'

Staircase 10' x 12'

Closet 5' x 8'

Total 100' x 40'

Production at Furnace Ovens Made an Increase; Merchant Plants a Continued Decrease

Ovens Blown Out and a Short Working Schedule the Order.

EFFECT OF LULL IS FELT

More by the Merchant Than by Furnace Operators May Become Increasingly True Before the Slump Improves; 6 Frick Plants Active

From The Weekly Courier.

Coke production maintained relatively the same position with respect to the operating interests last as during the preceding week. Furnace production made a further gain, and merchant production a further decrease. This condition is a reflection of the situation which has developed following the collapse of the threatened embargo on transportation, the effects of which are still being felt and perhaps with slightly increasing acuteness. At least there have appeared no dependable signs of an early resumption of the improvement which had begun to make rather steady progress up to the calling off of the railroad strike.

In anticipation of an interruption to freight train movement there was rather more stocking up by consumers of fuel than appeared on the surface, hence there has since been no need for further additions to plant accumulations of either coke or coal. Coupled with this fact is the more potent one of a more or less pronounced lull in pig iron circles and the decreasing of additions to production by blowing in more furnaces as was in contemplation several weeks ago. The direct and immediate consequence has been that the demand for coke has taken off materially with a tendency toward a softening of prices.

The effect in the region has been felt by the merchants rather than by the furnace producers. To meet the situation there has been a halt in blowing in idle plants and ovens and a cutting down of the running-time schedule. Last week the plants making full six days were the exception instead of the rule. Five days, or perhaps only four and one-half days, more nearly represented the average running time. Some plants made but four days and a few but two.

Even with these precautions off the coke produced and loaded was not moved to the scales, several unconsigned loads being stored on plant sidings and a small tonnage of coke laid down on the yards. Still further restrictions of production are being made effective this week. The Steamboat plant which last week reduced its active list from 210 to 180 ovens, running but two days this week went out of blast completely. The blowing out of ovens at a number of plants will doubtless take place within a few days unless there is a change for the better in the outlook in the meantime.

Whether or not there will be such a change is a matter of more or less speculation in which several adverse factors are to be considered. The attitude of the furnacemen, which is adverse to any increase in productive capacity at this time, is perhaps greatest weight. The general full reduction from the failure of the railroad strike to put on size may be prolonged so much as to become more than temporary in its effects. If the furnace situation does not in the meantime become brighter, it will take a very optimistic prognosticator to forecast any considerable stimulation in the coke trade before the end of the year. The producers will meanwhile keep their fingers on the pulse of the patient market; careful note of every indication of a revival and ready to prescribe or perform a surgical operation, as the need may be.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, November 5, was 67,400 tons, credited to the two districts in the following proportions: Connellsville, 26,000, an increase of 7,170 tons; Lower Connellsville, 41,310, a decrease of 4,970 tons, and a net increase of 2,200 tons, as compared with an increase of 2,690 tons during the preceding week.

By interests the production was: Furnace, 29,000, a gain of 7,480 tons; Frick, 38,400, a loss of 6,280 tons as compared with a gain of 3,930 and a loss of 330 tons respectively during the week ended October 28.

There was a net decrease of 69 in the number of ovens in blast, the merchant plants having blown out 121 and the furnace plants having brought 52 to full production. The changes in detail were as follows: In, 52 at Phillips, eight at Griswold and one at Merlin; out, 29 at Hoover, 119 at Sealright. The only plant placed in operation by the U. C. Frick Coke company was Phillips, where 62 ovens were lit. This company now has 1,092 ovens in operation at six plants, four of which ran five days and two six days last week.

CORNER-STONE CASKET DATA

English Historian Suggests Most Useful Things and Data to be Placed in Cavity.

The manager of a huge building that is being erected in England has, says the Manchester Guardian, been considering the idea of a foundation-stone casket to be imbedded in the great mass of terra-concrete on which the building is to stand. As a reader of Mr. Wells' "Outline of History" he was struck by Mr. Wells' difficulty, through lack of significant material, in dealing with the world's history 8,000 years ago. As he was told that the concrete foundations would last at least that long, he thought that it might be of use to the Mr. Wells of A. D. 4921 if he found the information about our time neatly prepared for him. Accordingly he wrote to Mr. Wells and asked him to suggest what would be the most useful things or messages to be placed in the cavity. Here is Mr. Wells' reply:

"Difficult to make suggestions. Probably commonplace things with their current prices will be of as much value as anything. Safety razor, cotton reel, bottle of pickles and that sort of thing. A mail-order catalogue, pre-war medicines and what they profess to cure. Dietary for ordinary citizens; typewriter, a sewing machine, and so forth. Dressing bag with fittings. Current book on 'How to Behave.' Almanac, feet of current events. White's Almanac and Bradshaw's Continental timetables (pre-war and post-war). Bradshaw's England, Town maps and plans."
